

Dr. Ron Dillow

Q: I have a partial denture and I really don't like it. Is there anything other than a partial that will replace my missing teeth?

A: I have helped many patients in your situation. You have several options

Ask The Dentist

available, depending on your situation.

If you dislike the partial because of thickness or metal showing, I can now make partials that are thin and contain no metal.

I can also make snap in partials.

I can also replace missing teeth in a way that stay in at all times with nothing under your tongue or in the roof of your mouth to collect food or interfere with speech. Life is too short to live with something you do not like.
