Q: I have not been keeping my regular checkups for the last year or two to save money. I recently had a tooth sensitive to cold and sweets for a few days but now it feels fine. Should I have this checked?

A: Many families are feeling the economic squeeze these days. However, regular maintenance visits actually keep the cost of dental care to a minimum. The cost of treatment is always higher when problems worsen. Many dental conditions start with little or no warning sign.

If you have dental insurance, the cost of checkups and cleanings are usually covered in full, with little or no out of pocket expense. Since benefits must be used each year, any benefits not used annually are lost.

If you do not have dental insurance, the annual cost of two checkups, two cleanings and x-rays annually averages less than a dollar per day. And if you need treatment, the cost can be managed with monthly payment plans.
