

Dr. Ron Dillow

Q: I think I need a lot of dental treatment that I have been putting off. I feel overwhelmed. What is the best way to get started?

A: I have seen many patients who feel like you do. The first step is to find a dental office you feel comfortable with and trust. If it does not feel right, it probably is not for you.

Discuss your concerns with the dentist and the staff. I always help my patients prioritize treatment based not only on their symptoms and needs, but also on what they think is important.

Once a plan is in place, treatment can be scheduled in a way the meets the budget and fits your work or family schedule.

As many of our patients have found, once you get started, you will feel a lot better.
