Q: I have a partial with metal wires that show when I smile. Can these be removed?

A: The simple answer is yes. However, your partial may no longer stay in place, since the wires are there to stabilize it. Implants and bridges are a much more natural feeling and looking tooth replacement option.

If cost is a concern, a better solution is to consider a partial that uses a hidden attachment design. These partials have no metal and are usually thinner. They are made to snug around the teeth with no metal wires.

I have made many of these type of partials and my patients love them.
